NEWS AND COMMENTS.

THE indications now are that the crops are being damaged by excessive rains.

"MARK TWAIN" is over at Aix-les-Bains, bathing in its waters for the "writers' cramp," with which he is afflicted. We hope that "Mark" may speedily recover—albeit he has made us and thousands of others run the risk of worse doubling up than the "writers' cramp" in our convulsions of laughter over his very, very funny pages.

WE have it from Raleigh that "Gov. HOLT will not apply the direct-tax fund to the payment of the appropriation made for the World's Fair." Why, of course not: why should he? The direct-tax fund does not belong to North Carolina, but to certain individuals who paid it to the Federal government 25 years ago. It should be refunded immediately, and as rapidly as possible, for just at this time it would be of great assistance to those farmers so fortunate as to have portions of it due them, however small the amounts may be.

THE Emperor of Germany says that "Europe is peace." What a peace! The peace that bristles with forts, entrenchments and all the munitions of war; the peace that peoples the seas with naval armaments; the peace that keeps one nation in watch upon another with jealous suspicion; the peace that keeps 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 men with arms in their hands, while the already depressed agricultural resources of rapidly depopulating Europe are taxed to the utmost to sustain the enormous burden; the peace that always distrusts and dreads—the peace that is only waiting for the final worst, when the thrones will topple and the sceptres fall!

SHOULD Gov. CAMPBELL come out victorious in the approaching Ohio election—pitted as he is against the very high priest of Protection, with the issues accentuating his canvass which will dominate in the national campaign of next year—he will take a great big plaee in the procession of possible Presidential candidates for 1892. He will have proved himself a magnificent fighter, an able organizer and a brilliant leader, with the nerve of CLEVELAND and many of his methods. He is a stronger speaker than the ex-President, however, has a better political training, and will have deserved every bit as well of his party as had CLEVELAND when he was nominated for President in 1884.

IN our judgment the Southern Farmers' Alliance has taken no action since its organization—not even formulating the sub-treasury bill—more important than the concerted effort now in contemplation to control the price of cotton by limiting its production. Here and there sub-alliances have already pledged themselves to only a certain cotton acreage next year, and if the movement becomes general it means a revolution in Southern agriculture—a most beneficent and salutary revolution. Cotton may be "king," but a king whose seeptre is a striked and murderous club working havoc among subjects who give him harvest by the hundreds of acres, with no bread and meat to the fore.

THE man died in Baltimore the other day—SAMUEL SANDS, an aged printer, in his 92nd year—who first set up in type, from the original manuscript, "The Star-spangled Banner," by FRANCIS KEY, who, while a prisoner on a British frigate during the War of 1812, was inspired to write the lines by seeing his country's flag waving over Fort McHenry. By the way, we were in Washington City in 1859—a school-boy at the time—when PHILLIP BARTON KEY, son of the author of that patriotic ode, was shot down by DANIEL F. SICKLES for betraying his honor and wrecking his domestic happiness. SICKLES, after his acquittal, condoned the fault, taking back the soiled partner of his bosom. He lost his leg during the war as a general in the Federal army, and is now high sheriff of New York.

"ACCORDING to statistics on insanity the proportion of insane persons in the United States is one to every 262; in Scotland one to every 574; in agricultural districts of England one to every 820, and in London one to every 400. Insanity has increased rapidly in this country within the past quarter of a century." There is little doubt about the increase of insanity in this country, and probably in every country in the civilized world, for progress is sending this terrestrial globe spinning on its axis with such dizzy speed that only very level heads can retain their equilibrium; but we question the accuracy of the above figures. Allowing a population of 63,000,000 for the United States, this estimate would give us almost exactly 243,346 maniacs for the whole Union, with 5,700 for North Carolina's share. Surely we are not a nation of lunatics.

THE New York Herald has been indicted by a grand jury in New York for publishing more of the recent quadruple electro-execution at Sing Sing than the law authorizes. This is "pie" to the Herald, the breath of whose nostrils is the world's attention, notoriety and applause, and by this splendid advertisement it will bring multitudes of "fish to its net." The law may be absurd and even unconstitutional, but it is a law nevertheless; and, as the Herald frankly avows that it "deliberately disregarded" the statute, we do not see how it is to escape conviction. The penalty is twelve months' imprisonment or a fine of $500, or both; but as JAMES GORDON BENNETT lives in Paris it would be difficult to jail the responsible offender, while $500 or $5,000 would be a mere bagatelle to the rich Herald for the privilege of masquerading as a martyr-champion in the cause of the "freedom of the press."

HE WAS MR. DAVIS'S FAITHFUL FRIEND.

A Colored Man Who Served the ex-President.

Baltimore Sun.]

Frederick B. McGinnis, a well known colored man of Baltimore, has received from Mrs. Jefferson Davis a handsome osage-orange-wood cane, which is a bequest from the ex-President of the Confederate States. The cane has a massive silver head, handsomely wrought, and beneath it a silver band with the inscription: "To Frederick McGinnis, from Jefferson Davis, in memory of faithful services during 1867."

McGinnis was with Mr. Davis in the capacity of servant during his confinement at Fortress Monroe, and by his forethought and tact contributed largely to the comfort of Mr. Davis. Speaking of Frederick in her biography of her husband, Mrs. Davis said:

"What this judicious, capable, delicate-minded man did for us could not be computed in money or told in words. He and his gentle wife took the sting out of many indignities offered to us in our hours of misfortune. They were both objects of affection and esteem to Mr. Davis as long as he lived."

Mrs. Davis also relates of Frederick two instances illustrative of his devotion to Mr. Davis. To a vulgar inquiry as to the whereabouts of "Jeff," he answered with a bow, "I am sorry, madam, not to be able to inform you where he is. I do not know such a person." She insisted that he did, saying: "Are you not his servant?" He answered: "No, madam, you are quite mistaken; I have the honor to serve ex-President Davis."

At another time, when about to marry Mrs. Davis's maid, Mrs. Davis asked him if she might invite several of the officers at the fort, notably General Burton, to witness the marriage. He said: "I will send them as much cake and wine as you choose, but cannot receive people as our guests who hold Mr. Davis a prisoner."

Frederick said last night: "I first saw Mr. Davis in front of General Beauregard's tent during the battle of Manassas. I had no idea at the time who Mr. Davis was, but I knew from the dignity of his bearing that he was a man of prominence. The next time I saw him was at Greensboro, N. C., and after the surrender at Appomattox, when I had the pleasure of serving him with a cup of coffee—the first, he informed me, he had had since he left Richmond. When I saw Mr. Davis again he was a prisoner at Fortress Monroe. I went there to wait on him, to prepare delicacies for his table that he could not procure at the fort. I remained with him nearly two years, until he was released from prison. I went with him to Richmond, thence to Montreal, and for several weeks had the care of the children while Mr. and Mrs. Davis went away. I stayed with them until they completed their preparations to go to Europe, when I bade them good-bye and came to Baltimore."

Reading the Human Face.

St. Louis Republic.]

Everyone knows that men's passions, propensities and peculiarities, as well as their callings, are reflected in their faces, but it is only the few who make the study of physiognomy an especial pursuit who are gifted with the power of reading those faces. Judges who have served long terms on the bench, lawyers in large practice and doctors of eminence, possess the power of interpreting physiognomies more largely than other people, but anyone can acquire the rudiments of the art by dint of hard study.

It is as impossible to disguise a face (without putting on a mask) as it is to disguise one's hand-writing. When the expert comes the disguise is torn off, and the face tells the true story of the spirit inside the body. One only needs to visit the penitentiary to realize how undeniable vice writes its sign-manual upon the features. It is not the drunkard only whose red nose, flabby cheeks and watery eyes betray him; it is the sensualist whose vice is read in his lips, the knave whose propensity is revealed by the shape of his mouth, and the man of violence who has been betrayed by his eyes. An experienced detective or a trained jailer seldom asks the crime of which a prisoner is guilty: he can tell it on the criminal's face. In short, all the advantages which Fowler told us we are going to derive from the study of phrenology we may possibly gain from the older and more mysterious science of face-reading.

A Good Lesson Learned.

Colonel Ludlow, who was chief of the water department of a large city, one day received a call from a wealthy manufacturer, whose establishment had many favors to ask of the department. Before this man made his request he handed the colonel a fifty-dollar bill, which the colonel laid upon the desk before him, without saying a word. When the visitor arose to go, however, he inquired:

"Now, my dear sir, what is this for?" holding up the bill.

"Oh! that's to buy cigars for the boys."

"Yes; then I suppose you are fond of the weed?"

The manufacturer acknowledged that he did like a good cigar.

"Then allow me," said the chief, in his most genial manner, "to insist upon your trying one of these."

He took two cigars from a box, lighted his own with the fifty-dollar bill, and passed the burning paper to his amazed visitor. The man said nothing, but he never made a second attempt to bribe Colonel Ludlow.

An Illustration.

"My son," said an Arab chieftain, "hasten to the spring, and bring me a basket of water." The lad hastened, and worked long and diligently to fill the basket; but before he could return to the tent the water leaked out. At length he saw that the labor was in vain, and he returned to his father and said: "Although I repeatedly filled the basket the water would not stay." Then his father took the basket and said: "My son, what you say is true. The water did not stay, but see how clean and pure is the basket. So it is with your heart. You may not be able to remember all the precepts you hear, but keep trying to treasure them; they will make your heart pure and fit for heavenly uses."

DYING AT THE TOP.

Great Britain's Aristocracy Steadily Getting into Difficulties.

London Cor. New York Herald.]

Burghley House, by Stamford tow, with all the great estate surrounding it, will shortly be thrown upon the market. The descendants of the famous Lord Burghley, the great Minister of Queen Elizabeth, must part which their ancient inheritance, and a stranger will enter into possession.

This branch of the Cecils has not been as fortunate as the younger branch, the head of which, Lord Salisbury, has entertained the Queen, and only the other day had the German Emperor under his roof. Hatfield continues to flourish, but "Ichabod" must soon be written over the portals of Burghley.

There is scarcely a more beautiful or interesting house to be seen anywhere, and it stands in a park which is the glory of the surrounding country. Some of the finest carvings of Grinling and Gibbons are found in the rooms, and masterpieces by Paul Veronese, Castiglione, Bavano, Kneller and Lely adorn the walls.

Since 1560 the property has been in the same family. Now it will pass to some Colonel North or Baron Hirsch, or perhaps to some wealthy American; for there are very few persons in England who can afford to launch out into such a purchase as this. The farms on the estate do not pay under the altered conditions of agriculture; the rents cannot be got in; the revenue no longer meets the expenses; all must go under the hammer of the auctioneer. Thus one after another historic seats are disappearing or changing hands.

The policy of Sir Robert Peel in 1846 is slowly working out the results foretold then by many. The bulk of the people are thus far benefited, but the old families are going or gone, and all have got the dry rot.

Several years ago, when the Great Northern Railway was to be built, the then Marquis of Exeter spent a great sum of money in opposing the line, and he succeeded in his object; but at what an expense, for not only did he have to pay the enormous costs, but ultimately he actually found it necessary to make a railroad himself, connecting his property with the main line! He found himself completely isolated, while the rest of the district was deriving enormous advantages from the railroad. This was the first great step toward the impoverishment of the family. Bad harvests, cheap wheat from abroad, decaying agriculture and unrestricted foreign competition have done the rest.

Unless these obstinate, slow-moving old families can adapt themselves to the times they will all have to go the same road. At present scores of them are holding on by a mere thread. Carriages are put down, servants are discharged, the London house is given up; but these economies will not suffice to avert the ruin that is steadily advancing on the old stock who once thought England belonged to them.

Quickly Earned Wealth.

New York Telegram.]

John D. Rockfeller is worth $125,000,000 and Jay Gould $100,000,000. Now, let's see how much the sons of our great millionaries will be worth in, say, fifty years. George Gould will, in all probability, get the bulk of his father's wealth. Say Jay Gould don't die for five years more; he will then be worth fully $150,000,000 if his fortune rolls up as rapidly as it is doing now. If George Gould can manage to control and increase his father's millions, I have figured out that in forty years he will be worth a billion of dollars.

John D. Rockfeller's heir, if his $125,000,000 goes to him in a lump, will be worth nearly two billion dollars in fifty years. The Rockfeller millions have accumulated very rapidly. Most of the great fortunes have rolled up in one generation, but the Rockfeller fortune has been made in less time. Allowing for an increase as rapid as in the past, and large rates of interest, I am pretty sure that the two billion dollar estimate will be correct. Well, William Waldorf Astor now has a fortune of $125,000,000. He will get at least seven per cent. on the estate, and will, in all probability, live for twenty-five years more. Now, the son, John Jacob Astor, will then be about forty-five years old. Making computations at the rate of seven per cent., and compounding the interest semi-annually to allow for reinvestment, the Astor millions in twenty-five years would roll up to $698,012,500. Then in twenty-five years John Jacob Astor could become a billionaire, and have a few millions to spare.

The chances are that nearly all the great fortunes will be augmented every year far beyond their natural increase. Investments by these men of millions are constantly being made that earn one hundred per cent. a year, and there are some no doubt that earn different percentages all the way up to five hundred or even one thousand.

Cattle at the Ford.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

"One of the prettiest sights in all the world, to my notion," said an Arizona cattleman, "is a big band of cattle fording a wide, deep stream. When the leaders have reached the further side there is a bow-shaped line of horns and heads, showing how the mid-stream current carries them down. The sharp-pointed horns look like a line of bayonets.

"One time last February I saw such a sight. That time, however, it was not so pleasing. We were driving about 600 head of stock cattle to California, and had struck the Colorado River at Yuma. The river was at flood stage, so we split the drove up into bunches of twenty each. I was getting the fourth bunch across, and had them about half over, when there was a tremendous, terrifying roar. Looking up stream, I saw a wall of debris and drift, 40 feet high, coming down like an avalanche. In the few seconds I watched it sweeping down I could see that there were houses, cattle, horses, barns and haystacks caught in the great mass. It was a pretty close call, but we made the bank just in time. As the last steer scrambled up the bank the freshet rushed by us with the speed of an express train. I got word over to the main herd, and told the men to drive up the river until we could cross. It was three weeks before we met again, and in that time the herd and the men on the other side had some terrible experiences, struggling through miles of sand where there was not a blade of grass or a drop of water."

"STRANGER THAN FICTION."

Brother Marries Sister—A Horrible Scheme of Revenge.

Twenty-two years ago there lived in a small town in Texas a respectable family named Paine. A son was born and christened Ransom. Not long afterward Mr. Paine had a fight with a man named Wyne, who bore several aliases and was an unprincipled scoundrel. The latter was worsted in the fight, and swore vengeance. The Paines lived in peace until their son was two years of age, and Mr. Paine had forgotten the threat.

One night Mr. Paine was called away from home on business, leaving his family alone. The boy was sleeping in a crib in the mother's room, near an open window. She was forced to leave the room for a few minutes, and upon her return was horrified to find the crib empty. The frantic woman ran to her nearest neighbor, and a posse scoured the country. The husband was sent for, and every means employed to find the missing child, but without avail. The search was kept up for weeks, the agonized father spending large sums of money in the search.

Finally the parents became discouraged, and gave their son up as lost. The father resolved to leave the scene of his great trouble, and a few months later moved to Tennessee, locating at Huron. From there they moved to Milan. In the meanwhile a girl was born to them, and was christened Nina. The father embarked in the real estate business there, and accumulated considerable money. The girl grew up believing that she was the only child. She developed from year to year until she is now a beautiful bride, much admired by the young men. About a year ago a young man came to this city from Galveston, Texas. Having some capital, he opened a large mercantile establishment, and entered society; was much sought after by the mammas who knew of his financial standing.

Miss Paine several months ago made her debut in society, and from the first a mutual love sprang up between the young people, and they were soon engaged. On Monday last they were married in a manner befitting their social standing. Tuesday the groom received a note penned in a strange hand, stating that the writer had some important news to tell him, and that he would be in Milan on Thursday. On that day a rough man alighted from the Memphis train, and went to Mr. Paine's office. After conversing for a short time the stranger's manner changed, and in an insolent tone he exclaimed:

"John Paine, don't you know me? Don't you know the man who has only one leg on your account? Curse you, the hour for my revenge is here! I stole your boy and took him to Paris, and then to Galveston, and a friend of mine took him and adopted him as his child, and raised him well. He has completed my vengeance. To be plain, your son that was lost has married your daughter." Wyne escaped, and if caught will be lynched. The young woman is probably dying from prostration.

An Aged Printer Passes Away.

New York Herald]

Samuel Sands, who was the first printer to put in type the "Star Spangled Banner," died yesterday morning at his son's home at Lake Roland, Md., in his ninety-second year. At the time of his death Mr. Sands and his son, Samuel B. Sands, were editors and proprietors of the American Farmer. It was while a typesetter on the Baltimore American that, at the age of sixteen years, he set entire the "Star Spangled Banner" from the manuscript of the composer, Francis Scott Key. Mr. Sands was born in Annapolis, Md., but the family soon afterwards went to Baltimore, and after his father's death Samuel, who was the eldest child, was called upon to assist in the support of his mother and a family of children. He entered the printing-office of the Whig, then a leading paper in Baltimore, as a "printer's devil," or office boy. While there he learned the compositor's art, and on the discontinuance of the Whig entered the office of the Baltimore American, at the age of fourteen. At sixteen years of age he was foreman of the office, a rapid rise for one so young. He retained this position until he entered business for himself. For nearly eighty years he had been engaged in newspaper work, either as compositor, editor or publisher. As Mr. Sands told the story himself, he had at the time no conception of the good luck he was in when his master brought him the manuscript to set the now famous poem, with just the same feeling that he would have set "Polly Put the Kettle On," had his master handed him that. It had been written the night before by Mr. Key, and was revised that morning by the poet and his brother-in-law. When the manuscript was brought to the office by Judge Nicholson Mr. Sands was the only printer there, all the rest having gone down to take part in the defence of North Point.

Mr. Quinn's Ghost.

Cor. Indianapolis Journal.]

John Quinn, an old man, died at his residence on Bowman Avenue, Danville, Ill., about two weeks ago. After his death the family vacated the house, which was soon occupied by another family.

Yesterday afternoon, after locking all the doors, the family left for a few hours' visit with some friends in another part of the city. On their return home about dusk they were startled to see Mr. Quinn, dressed in his ordinary wearing apparel, walking up and down the front floor of his former sleeping-room.

Several neighbors were called to witness the strange spectacle, among whom were Wilber Welker, Mary Wilmer and Mrs. Henly Kirby. Mr. Quinn's ghost came twice to the window, bowed to the people gathered in the street, and then sat down in the window.

Suddenly every trace of him disappeared. Mr. Spreht and Miss Wilmer mustered up courage enough to enter the house, and found that not a lamp in the house would burn. Lights were obtained from the neighbors, and search made throughout the house. Everything was found securely locked, and no trace of anyone having entered. The neighborhood is greatly excited over the occurrence.

THE VETERANS' ENCAMPMENT.

The published accounts of the happy reunion of ex-Confederate Veterans at Wrightsville last week make us know that it was indeed a pleasant and soul-stirring assemblage of soldiers who once thrilled the world's great heart with their country's heroism, devotion and patriotic valor.

Merchants left the counting-room to the subordinate, and gathered about the camp-fire; lawyers tucked the brief away in the safe, and for half an hour practiced "keeping step" in the back office; farmers laid the hoe alongside the barn for the nonce, and made the neighborhood forests ring with the unwonted old "rebel yell," as they made their way to the nearest depot; at the "Home" at the State capital maimed old warriors had their best raiment gently drawn about their mutilated limbs by kind hands—they trembled somewhat with emotion as they bestirred themselves for this probable last reunion, and the same deep feeling dimmed the eyes of their attendants—and were carefully helped aboard the train to bear them to the rendezvous:—in a word, the faint, flickering, but ever beautiful, fire of the "Old South" flashed out in North Carolina, and the "New South," in its stalwart vigor and lusty strength, stood by with uncovered head.

Life in camp brought back with almost painful realism the familiar scenes of twenty-eight and thirty years ago—a melancholy pageant from the troublous past: the bugle call, the plaintive night tattoo and stirring morning reveille, the sentry's tramp, at night the sleeping white-winged tents, throughout the day the gathering of the men and all the pleasant stir of field routine. There was handshaking of comrades who had touched elbows in "closing up" the gap as some poor fellow fell by the way, and had never since looked in each others' eyes; there was many a tribute, in rude eloquence and deep feeling, to companions passed away; there was reminiscence of camp frolics and camp mischief; and of "Marse Robert" at the Wilderness; and of "Stonewall" in the Valley; and of the debonnair cavalier Jeb Stuart, his golden hair dabbled with his life-blood, the light of his blue eye quenched, at Yellow Tavern; and of Johnston, and Hill, and Longstreet, and Hoke—of all that magnificent panorama of war in its "pomp and circumstance," war in its patriotic self-sacrifice, war in its holocausts of victims, war in its crowning horror of the last day of disaster, from Bethel to Appomattox.

How the fading eyes of these veterans brightened under the inspiration of this remarkable gathering, while the very seams which time, year after year, has laid upon cheek and brow seemed to be smoothed out under the genial influence of this light shining out from the clustering memories of other days! They enjoyed those few hours with the keen zest born of their honored position before their fellow-citizens, and returned home with hearts strengthened for the remaining duties interwoven with declining life.

But the proceedings of this Veterans' Encampment come to us with a significance not afforded in viewing it simply as an old soldiers' reunion, and they bid us treasure in our hearts two lessons: No class or condition of the people of North Carolina regarded this extraordinary assemblage with indifference, the keenest official and individual interest and cordial cooperation being everywhere manifested. The State authorities, the railway and steamer lines, the people along the route of their journey, the citizens of Wilmington (especially), their fellow-citizens within all the limits of the commonwealth, made it a common cause that the grim old followers of Lee and Johnston should hobnob once more about the camp-fire with glad hearts. Said one cripple in camp, in the exuberance of his gratified feelings at the attentions lavished upon him: "Well, well, the people do care for us, after all." Yes, brave old man, the people do care for you. The war, which you sustained so valiantly, inflicted upon them poverty whose pinchings they yet feel, but they vote no sum out of the common fund with greater heartiness than that which provides for your comfort and easement under affliction, and when you shall have passed away—though no shaft mark your resting-place—they will warn the wayfarer approaching too near the spot where you sleep: "Stop, traveler, thou treadst upon a hero."

Finally, last weeks' Veterans' Encampment bids us remember that the "War Between The States" is rapidly passing into history, and, but a little more, will be only a memory, to be cherished, to be sanctified, but, after all, naught but a memory. The boy with cheek tender as a girl's, who left the school-room or the college-hall to hasten to the front, has already beaten his way through more than half the conflicts in the "battle of life," and confronts the stern duties about him with the steady poise of middle age; the soldier of 1861, who, in the glow of maturned manhood, left wife and child that he might preserve to them a heritage more precious than wealth, was among those stooped and gray-haired survivors on the sea-shore the other day; the men who, already settled in life at the call to arms, took their places in those serried legions which wrapped the "fiery cross" in deathless fame—already sleep!

ISSUES OF THE DAY.

The suggestion by Col. T. H. Sutton, to be found elsewhere in today's OBSERVER, that the Governor turn over to the different counties of the forty odd that paid the direct taxes to the Government in 1866, and which has been refunded, the residue of the unclaimed moneys, is a good one; one that should be heeded, and if carried out would in all probability put hundreds and possibly a thousand dollars in our county treasury, which otherwise would in the end be divided pro rata among the other counties of the State which paid not a cent.

We notice that at a recent meeting of the Farmers' Alliance of Wake county, Hon. J. C. Scarborough, ex-Superintendent of Public Instruction for North Carolina, was strongly recommended as the choice of that body for the next Governor of the State.

This action, though well in advance of even all preliminary steps looking to the organization of the campaign of 1892, cannot be regarded as premature, in view of the advantage of profound consideration over so important a matter, and is significant as evidencing the conservatism of opinion governing the Wake county Alliance. Hon. J. C. Scarborough's services to his State have been varied and distinguished—no man has labored more unselfishly and assiduously in behalf of popular education—and, while in no sense a politician, he has the solid and enduring qualities to make the State ticket strong and overwhelmingly successful. If elected he would be a Governor for all the people.

Tom Worth Dead.

The sad news of the sudden death of Mr. T. C. Worth, at his home in Greensboro at 3:30 o'clock Monday, was received with profound sorrow by his many friends in Fayetteville. Of him we clip the following from the Raleigh News and Observer of Tuesday:

Mr. Worth was born in November, 1854, and was in the 37th year of his age. He was educated at Bingham's School, and entered into business with his father, Dr. J. M. Worth, at Asheboro upon the completion of his education. His father becoming Treasurer of the State in 1876, he took the position of Teller in the Treasury, and continued in that capacity till the spring of 1880, when he went as assistant treasurer of the Randleman Manufacturing Company, at Randleman. He held that position till the completion of the mills of the Worth Manufacturing Company. He then resigned his position as assistant treasurer of the Randleman Manufacturing Company, and took charge of the Worth Manufacturing Company as treasurer and general manager. He held that position till his death.

In the spring of 1889 he moved to Greensboro, where he invested largely in real estate and various other interests, in all of which he was very successful. He was President of the Greensboro Coal and Mining Company, and was a member of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Executive Committee of the North Carolina Steel and Iron Company. He was also President of the Greensboro Co-operation Cotton Mills, was a director of the Bank of Guilford, and was a director of the Guilford Lumber Manufacturing Company. He was President of the Worth-Wharton Real Estate and Investment Company. He was largely interested directly or indirectly in every progressive movement at Greensboro, and had become identified as one of her most enterprising, progressive and public-spirited citizens.

By nature and instinct Mr. Worth was genial and companionable, and for one of his years ranked among the finest business men North Carolina has produced in many years. As a financier he was the equal of any of that distinguished family of which he was a member, and by his death Greensboro loses another one of her foremost citizens in every progressive movement.

Now for Our Robeson Neighbors.

There are close business relations and delightful social ties between the people of Cumberland and Robeson counties; and we will all go down to Red Springs next week—feeling as if we were visiting kith and kin—where President McCallum and Secretary Covington, with their co-laborers, will have gathered together and opened out a splendid exhibition of the material products and industrial handiwork of the Cape Fear and Pee Dee sections; where Gov. Holt will honor us with the prestige of his official position, and Senator Ransom will entrance us with his eloquence; where the fair matrons and pretty girls will not disdain us a welcoming smile; where the Messrs. Townsend and Mr. Phil Wright will be ready, for us, when we invade the palatial new hotel, with a poultry-yard of 1,000 fat fowls; where we will quaff the health-giving waters, bet on the winning horse, and with infinite grace and agility swing about on the "merry-go-round."

We will enjoy all these goodly things; and then, "when the gold is on the pumpkin and the frost is on the vine," we will throw open our doors in November, and bid all our neighbors welcome, "bringing their sheaves with them," to unite with us in crowning with success our own annual exhibition.

ANOTHER SPECIALTY.

Those who have in contemplation a visit to the "Land of the Sky" or to the Seashore, and all other persons, will find a big bargain in Trunks of all sizes and kinds. These Trunks will be on exhibition from and after to-day, just across the street in the Moore store. They will be sold at a sacrifice, as I have no room to keep them, and intend giving up the trunk business.

F. W. THORNTON.

RED SPRINGS FAIR.

A Fine Exhibition Assured—Senator Ransom and Gov. Holt to be Present—Great Reduction of Rates to Those Attending Every Day.

To the Farmers of Cumberland and Adjoining Counties:

We realize that the prosperity and future development of our country depend upon your efforts.

We know that our towns and our country cannot prosper unless with the aid of the farmer and stock-grower. You are being favored with the most bountiful season, and your fields and pastures are producing all that could be hoped for, and plenty and contentment bless our land. In a time like this, when every one is producing the best, a friendly comparison among neighbors and friends of what each has results in great good to the country; it proves that many things you have not raised yourself can be produced, and you profit by it.

That our people may get together at the Second Annual Fair of the Lumber River Industrial and Live Stock Association to be held at Red Springs August 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th, the management have offered liberal premiums, embracing almost every product of the field, the garden, the orchard and the vineyard, as well as for every species of live stock raised in this section, and especially for all articles in the line of food and condiments, fancy needlework and household fabrics, and for paintings, drawings and other works of art.

A WORD TO THE LADIES.

No movement has proved a success without your good wishes and assistance, and we beg you to aid us.

The thousand and one beautiful things that you can contribute will be artistically displayed by the deft hands of the lady committee in charge.

The interior of the Fair building is ceiled and painted, and supplied with shelves, racks, easels and every convenience for exhibiting articles to the best advantage.

TO SUB-ALLIANCES.

Let every Sub-Alliance in Cumberland and neighboring counties, not alone for the liberal $40.00 premium offered, but for their own credit and for the good of the cause all have at heart, compete for the prize, thus inaugurating a spirit of emulation which will be of untold advantage to yourselves, and help on your Fair to a grand success.

There will be many attractive features, some of them unique and novel—distinguished speakers each day, a troupe of Scotch Highlanders in national costume, accompanied with the famous bagpipe music.

Racing and trotting each day, and a parade of veteran soldiers.

TERMS OF ADMITTANCE.

One person for the whole Fair (season ticket) $1.00.

One family—husband, wife and children living with them, one (each) day (family ticket) $1.00.

One person, adult, one (each) day (single ticket) 50 cents.

One child over six and under twelve, one (each) day 25 cents.

Reduced rates on the Railroads.

A Plea for a Public Benefactor.

For the Observer.]

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Fayetteville has certainly one thing that is superior to anything of the kind in this State, and that is the F. I. L. I. Band. It is a volunteer organization, composed of men, not the wealthiest in the land, who have banded themselves together for their own amusement and for the pleasure of the community.

I am afraid that the great pleasure that the citizens of Fayetteville are enjoying every Friday afternoon at the concerts given by this band at Seminary Park cannot be continued unless some substantial aid be given. If our worthy town commissioners will vote this band a respectable compensation for the real benefit that is being derived from these concerts, I am sure that there is not a man so mean as to utter a word of objection. The old and the young, rich and poor, white and black, all have an opportunity of enjoying the sweet music that is free to all every Friday afternoon.

It is a real benefit to the people, making them healthier and more satisfied with their lot in this world; it soothes the excited, tense nervous system, and, in fact, makes people better men and women in every respect, rendering them also more satisfied as citizens of Fayetteville.

I understand that the band desires to buy uniforms; now would be a good time for the town to aid. "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast"—the commissioners are invited and urged to go out Friday afternoon and hear it. M.

Outrage and Murder.

Wilmington Star.]

Information was received in this city yesterday of a horrible murder near Ivanhoe, a station on the C. F. & Y. V. Railroad, in Sampson county, about thirty miles from Wilmington.

The victim was a young colored girl between eleven and twelve years of age, named Florence Sutton. She was killed last Saturday night by a mulatto named John Johnson, who made his escape.

Particulars of the horrible crime are rather meagre. Saturday evening Johnson was at the house of the girl's mother, and sent Florence to a neighbor's to get a gallon of cider. On her return he met her on the road and criminally assaulted her. The girl failing to return home, search was made for her Saturday night and Sunday morning, Johnson joining in the search, but no trace of her could be found. Johnson was strongly suspected of having made away with the girl, and was closely watched, and Sunday evening after a hard rain he was tracked from his home to a place in the woods where he had hurriedly buried the dead body of the girl, and so imperfectly that one of her feet was found uncovered.

In the meantime Johnson disappeared, and yesterday it was ascertained that he had crossed Black river early in the morning, going in the direction of the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad.

Every effort was made to capture the murderer. Parties were sent in pursuit and telegrams were hurried off to Warsaw, Magnolia and Wilmington; but up to a late hour last night no trace of Johnson could be found. He is a bright mulatto, small in stature, with scar over one of his eyes, is married, and with his family lives on Mr. Theodore Sessoms' plantation near Ivanhoe. He has been in Mr. Sessoms' employ for the past six years.

"Oh, if I had only taken this medicine earlier in life what years of suffering it would have saved me!" was the touching exclamation of one who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Scores of such cases are on record.

Report of the Grand Jury.

Hon. Jas. D. McIver, Judge of the Superior Court of Cumberland County, July Term, 1891:

The Grand Jury respectfully report:

1. That they have carefully examined the county jail, and found the same in good condition for the safe-keeping of prisoners; the sanitary arrangement and ventilation are good; the quality and quantity of food for prisoners satisfactory, fresh water in abundance is furnished and at regular hours; the management of the jail is humane and commendable.

2. The Grand Jury examined the offices of the Clerk of the Superior Court and the Register of Deeds, and found the papers and records in good condition; neatness, order and system characterise these offices.

3. The Grand Jury carefully examined the court-house. It is inadequate to the present requirements. Since its construction the white population of the county has quadrupled, and an amendment to our State Constitution bestowing citizenship on the colored race has greatly augmented our litigant population. The court-room is too small, and there are no arrangements for the comfort of citizens who are compelled to attend our courts. Our people have a right to attend our courts, and to be made comfortable while there. The jury-rooms are too small; are uncomfortable and scarcely decent. There are no vaults for the protection of the records from loss by fire. These records contain our history as a county, and are invaluable to our people. Their destruction would lead to endless litigation, expense, trouble and annoyance. The further exposure of them to loss would be criminal negligence. The exterior appearance of the court-house is discreditable to the county. It is unsightly, antiquated and calculated to inspire contempt rather than that respect and reverence which our people should have for the hall of justice. The Grand Jury exonerates the Board of County Commissioners from censure for the condition of the court-house, as the board did its duty in submitting to a joint meeting of commissioners and justices plans and specifications for necessary repairs and additions to the court-house. The Grand Jury is informed that an expenditure of less than $2,500—an amount equal to 50 cts. per capita of voting population—would be ample for the purpose, and that the condition of our county finances justifies the expenditure. The Grand Jury recommend that the commissioners again submit to the joint meeting of commissioners and justices plans and specifications for enlarging and remodeling the court-house, and adding fire-proof vaults.

4. The Grand Jury in a body visited and carefully inspected the county poor-house. There are fourteen inmates at this institution. The management of this county charity is commended as humane, wise and economical. The Grand Jury is informed that the local ministry would hold religious services there regularly on Sabbath afternoons if there was any building there suitable for the purpose. This would be a great comfort to these unfortunate people who are unable to attend religious services elsewhere. The Grand Jury recommend that the commissioners have erected there a small building to be used as a chapel, at a cost not exceeding $100.

5. The Grand Jury find that the public officers of the county are capable, polite and faithful in the discharge of their duties.

Respectfully submitted,
JONATHAN EVANS,
Foreman Grand Jury.

The Direct Tax.

For the Observer.]

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The uncalled-for portion of the direct tax should in all fairness belong to the counties where it was paid, and to which it is accredited.

It is estimated that a considerable portion of it will be unclaimed, and surely the counties that paid it have, or ought to have, the prior lien.

Cumberland county paid of this tax $14,221.36. If there is any part of it not claimed that part should of right be turned into our county treasury.

A discussion of this subject may lead the Governor so to decide, or, if he should conclude that he has not the power so to do, the next legislature may correct it. It is at least of sufficient importance—in these "hard times"—to demand consideration.

Respectfully,
THOMAS H. SUTTON.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

The Murderer of Simeon Conoley Captured.

Special Star Telegram.]

WHITEVILLE, Aug. 3.—Mr. Frank McNeill, Solicitor of this District, received today a telegraphic dispatch from Albany, Oregon, informing him of the arrest of Daniel A. McDougald at that place. McDougald is charged with the murder of his uncle Simeon Conoley, an aged and respected citizen of Robeson county. When arrested McDougald had assumed the name of D. H. Laurin. He was captured by one of Pinkerton's detectives.

[The murder of Mr. Conoley was committed in April last, and McDougald was strongly suspected, but disappeared before he could be arrested. The grand jury of Robeson indicted him for the murder, and rewards were offered for his arrest.]

Harsh, But ——!

"Ho," said a well-known statesman, "I shall never believe that woman has the proper judgment and sense to cast a ballot, or interfere in politics, while she is so weak-minded as to passively suffer, year after year, from diseases peculiar to females, when every newspaper she picks up tells of the merits of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Not to take advantage of this remedy is certainly an indication of mental weakness!"

There is a wholesome kernel of truth inside the rough shell of this ungallant speech. The "Favorite Prescription" is invaluable in all uterine troubles, inflammations, ulcerations, displacements, nervous disorders, prostration, exhaustion or hysteria. For run-down, worn-out women, no more strengthening tonic or nervine is known.

The Best Life Policy.

It's not the Tontine plan, or Endowment plan, or Ten years' renewable plan. It's not adding your few dollars to the hundreds of millions that the insurance companies boast of. It's a better investment than any of those. It is investing a few dollars in that Standard Remedy, the "Golden Medical Discovery," a cure for Consumption, in its early stages, and all throat and lung troubles.

CHILDREN ENJOY

the pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious the most gratifying results follow its use, so that it is the best family remedy known, and every family should have a bottle.

A Wonder Worker.

Mr. Frank Huffman, a young man of Burlington, Ohio, states that he had been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be Consumption and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and at that time was not able to walk across the street without resting. TOWN AND COUNTY.

The Brute Captured.

We have been informed that Johnson—the fiend who murdered the colored girl, Fannie Sutton, near Ivanhoe, on Saturday last—has been caught. We have received no particulars.

Very Fine.

Taking them "by and large" (in the language of Senator Vance), we don't think we ever saw finer tomatoes than those raised this season by Capt. Jno. H. Robinson, at his place on Haymount.

Entertaining Columns.

It is not often that more interesting selected news matter appears in the OBSERVER (and "we can't say fairer than that") than will be found on 3rd (extra) page of to-day's papar. Read before you lay aside.

Special Trains for Red Springs.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company will run special trains next week during the Red Springs Fair—13th, 14th and 15th insts.—leaving Fayetteville at 8 A. M.; returning, leave Red Springs at 6:30 P. M.

Robinson—Pillow.

We acknowledge an invitation to the marriage, on the 11th inst., of Mr. Percy Robinson, a native of this city, now residing at Greenwood Miss., and Miss Hattie Pillow, of that place. May Heaven's choicest blessings be theirs through life.

All the Way from Georgia.

Our valued and highly esteemed friend, Mr. M. H. Rouse, of Albany, Georgia, will accept our thanks for the finest melon of the season. It measured 47 inches in circumferenee by actual measurement, and no doubt would have "tipped the beam" at 75 pounds when first gathered. If the Old North State can "go the Cracker State one better" she must show her hand, otherwise we "call you."

Huske's Hardware House.

The organization of Huske's Hardware House was perfected here the past week by the election of the following wide-awake and active men for its government:

President—S. H. Strange.
Vice-President—Robt. Strange.
Secretary and Treasurer—B. R. Huske.

With such enterprising and popular men at the helm it is safe to predict a most successful future for this new firm.

Fun in Good Old Harnett.

To-morrow the young folks of Harnett county (and doubtless a liberal sprinkling of old folks, who enjoy a day's recreation as much as anybody) will have a big picnic and reunion at McArtan's Mills, where they will be addressed by Messrs. D. H. McLean and W. E. Murchison—strong and entertaining speakers, both.

The crop prospects are magnificent, the music of a great national Democratic victory is already humming in the air, and they "don't care how the river runs" (so it don't run over into the low-lands, and wash away the corn).

Journalistic Change.

Last week's issue of the North Carolina Baptist gave notice of the sale of the paper by Rev. T. B. Newberry to the North Carolina Baptist Publishing Company, with Capt. J. L. Autry, a prominent citizen and Baptist, as President. The announcement is not made to this effect in that notice, but we learn that Rev. W. B. Oliver, pastor of the 1st Baptist Church of this city, and Rev. Mr. McManaway are to be editors—a strong combination, by which we may hope to see even an increase in the usefulness of this already remarkably prosperous religious paper.

Business Change.

Messrs. Tolar & Hart, commission merchants, No. 151 Front street, New York City, announce a change in their business, Mr. Jno. R. Tolar retiring from the active partnership, and Mr. J. H. Hart associating with himself Mr. H. McA. Tolar unner the firm-name of J. H. Hart & Co. Mr. Jno. R. Tolar will still retain an interest as special partner, and ample capital in the business will continue to furnish excellent facilities to the old friends and customers of the house.

We congratulate the firm on an unblemished and successful career of 20 years, and tender our best wishes for the future.

Capt. Vann on the War-Path.

Some friend at Durham must have supposed that, after the attack upon the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry by the State Guard Association, Capt. Jno. C. Vann had dug up the hatchet, and put on the war-paint and feathers for a bloody campaign.

A few days ago he received a neat, oblong express package from Durham, which, divested of its wrappings, revealed a gun, which, as a shootist, may not be a success (although the old lady did say that an unloaded gun is dangerous without lock, stock or barrel), but the sculpture of the piece is rugged, vigorous and imposing, while the lettering, "1793," on the butt is in the highest degree artistic.

An Important Report.

No official action, touching the material interests and vital concerns of the people of Cumberland county, has been brought to our notice in a long time which we regard as more important than the report of the grand jury, of which Maj. Jno. Evans was foreman, submitted to his Honor on the bench at the last term of our Superior Court.

We are gratified that the grand jury found so much to commend in the administration of county affairs—we were confident that they would, for Sheriff Smith and Messrs. Cain and Hall have proven themselves excellent officers, while the management of the poor-house by the superintendent, Mr. Leslie, has been notably good—and we sincerely hope that due weight will be given by the proper authorities to their timely, vigorous and well-considered recommendations for correcting abuses and remedying evils.

In many years of at least faithful service for our people we do not think that we have ever advocated extravagant and imprudent expenditure of public money, and we shall leave those holding fiduciary trust to determine how extensive shall be the plans which transform the court-house from a dilapidated shell into a safe depository of the county records, or sweep it away to make room for a decent building. We believe that the three shabbiest court-houses in North Carolina are gathered in a bunch made up of Harnett, Cumberland and Robeson counties, and that of Cumberland is the worst of all; but the proper authorities must decide upon the costliness of the improvement which lifts us out of this unpleasantly distinguished trio. We would fail in our duty, however, if we did not urge such immediate action as will reasonably secure from fire and robbery records which, once destroyed, will entail serious loss and vexatious litigation upon the property-owners of Cumberland county.

A Mongol View of "Brother Jonathan."

We clip the following from our esteemed contemporary, the Pekin (China) Gazette (after translation), which will be refreshing reading to citizens of the "best government the world ever saw" and the "most enlightened and progressive nation on the face of the earth:"

It is impossible to understand these barbarous people (Americans). One thing is certain: if any of them do a thing they do it with all their might.

Thirty years ago they had a big civil war. The whole country was turned into military camps and battle-fields, and everybody, even to the women folk, was engaged in one way or another, and one army numbered 2,000,000 men. And now there are young men old enough to vote who have never seen a company of soldiers in their lives. In fact, these people seem to think that another war will never break out, especially in their part of the world. A person can travel across the American continent without seeing a soldier, and follow the main lines of travel, too. In fact, at the present time there is only about one soldier for every 2,000 persons, while Russia has one soldier to every 90.

It would doubtless cause a shock to our national vanity could we know just the opinion entertained of our Western civilization by the "heathen Chinee" and other barbarians of the Old World. One morning, in the spring of 1889, we were riding on a Fairmount Avenue car in Philadelphia, and next to us sat two subjects of the "Celestial Kingdom"—not the clothes-washing "Johns," but "swells" from the Chinese silk and mercantile quarter of the city, elegantly attired, and bearing the impress of refinement. A picnic party, bound for Fairmount Park, boarded the train, and their cockney fussiness and obtrusive hilarity appeared to greatly entertain the Chinamen, who were evidently commenting in their soft, low tones. Finally one of them, turning to us with a smile of good-humored forbearance, said in excellent English: "Your people are very amusing to a cultivated foreigner." We were paralyzed for an hour!

Stamping Her Own Wares.

Mr. T. T. Wright shows us an egg laid by one of the hens in his poultry-yard which bears its trade-mark as plain as the publisher's "imprint" or the painter's "pinxit." Doubtless this fowl is as faithful an incubator as "The old black hen with yellow legs,

Which laid her master many eggs."

The egg is lettered, "B. W. D.—118, V;" and, after a little thought, we readily translated the legend to be: "For 'Boss' Wright's Dinner—my 118th egg in five months."

The enigma was much more rapidly elucidated by our quick mind than was the inscription by Mr. Pickwick which he discovered on a stone at Cobham, when he went to look Mr. Tupman up after Mr. Jingle ran away with the "spinster aunt." That read: "Billst umpsz hism ark," and Mr. Pickwick hugged his "find" to his bosom in a transport of enthusiasm as a mediæval treasure-trove of rare archæological and antiquarian value, until a more prosaic genius rendered it into Anglo-Saxon: "Bill Stumps X his mark."

He Will Be There.

One of the popular and attractive features of the Red Springs Fair will be the presence, in his official capacity, of Mr. Geo. A. Burns, a well-known livery-stable man of Fayetteville, with fine teams and stylish turnouts. The Farmer and Scottish Chief of last week says:

Squire H. McNeill has added to his livery business new carriages, buggies and fine horses, and has secured the services of Mr. Geo. Burns, one of Fayetteville's popular and accommodating liverymen, with all of his fine turnouts, to be on hand. Mr. Burns will bring with him a tony phaeton and a very handsome pair of "hot and firey steeds" for the exclusive use of the Governors, Generals and Colonels who are to make the chin-music for the fair—we mean the Industrial Fair—Capt. Billy McLaurin and assistants will look after the other fair.

This Week's Table of Contents.

Our wideawake advertisers are doing their share in making one department of the OBSERVER interesting and valuable to its readers:

Prof. Joseph Kinsey advertises the opening of the fall session of his LaGrange Female Seminary—an excellent school, combining firstrate home and intellectual training, and publishing a handsome little paper partially made up of pupils' work.

Read the advertisement of the old and well-known Wesleyan Female Institute of Staunton, Va.

Mr. E. F. Moore, Jr., offers for sale the valuable Moore residence on Haymount—a desirable piece of property.

The oldest female college in the South is located at Salem N. C., and those who have sent their girls to Salem Female Academy say that it is not only the oldest but best.

See notice of sale by Mr. Jno. C. Vann, commissioner.

Mr. T. H. Sutton offers to sell an excellent plantation in Bladen county; or, if you don't want to buy, he'll swap places.

Mr. Geo. A. Overbaugh, real estate and collection agent, can be found at his office in the sheriff's building on Green street.

See notice of annual meeting of Fayetteville & Albemarle R. R. Co.

Read advertisement of Southern Rubber Company.

Messrs. Jno. Underwood & Bro. continue their entertaining corrospondence on insurance, and to-day present interesting Open Letter No. 3.

Sheriff Smith advertises an important sale under execution.

Mr. A. S. Huske, besides keeping up a full line of staple and fancy groceries, is now handling Pearce's Bordeaux grapes, put up in fine packages. Remember your sweetheart at Carolina Beach (or she needn't be down at the seashore—up the country will do).

It looks like a bargain to get two dollars for one; and Mr. Frank Thornton, determined that no one shall go barefoot with so much wet weather and ground-itch prevalent, offers a $5 shoe for $2.50.

We Endorse It Heartily.

We call especial attention to "M's" communication in another column, making merited commendation of the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry Band, and offering a suggestion to the town commissioners well worth their consideration. This excellent band—to which there is nothing at all comparable in all North Carolina—has drawn largely of the admiration and gone deep into the affections of all classes of the citizens of Fayetteville, and any reasonable substantial aid which the municipal authorities may vote to them will be duly honored by their constituents.

We know scores of the most intelligent and discriminating of our people of both sexes—deaf to the blare of the ordinary horn—who look forward to these Friday evening concerts with very pleasurable feelings, and take some pains in arranging their business and suiting their hours to an attendance on them.

Our correspondent touches judiciously upon the elevating influence of fine music in general, and of the music of this band in particular, on the emotions and sensibilities. Should the band fail of permanent success it wouldn't stop one of our factories, close a single store, cause a railroad train to lay over a day, or blow up a steamboat; but its failure would take out of our daily lives one of the most charming adjuncts to social enjoyment ever accorded to us, while we would for a long time feel the reproach of utterly disregarding an excellent thing in æsthetic culture when we had it in our grasp.

Special Premium List.

We invite in particular the attention of our readers this week to the special premium list of the Cumberland Fair, which will be followed from time to time with other premiums. The increase all round this year should doubly insure the best exhibit we have had in years. From present indications the live stock exhibit will eclipse anything ever before seen in these parts. Everything about the fair grounds is being put in first-class condition for safe keeping and the proper care of live stock of every description during the fair. The railroads have all agreed to transport back and forth free of charge all articles for exhibition at the fair. Let our people put their shoulders to the wheel, and have the biggest fair in the history of the county.

Almost a Catastrophe.

A correspondent writes us that lightning struck the pavilion at McFadyen Springs Tuesday afternoon, shivering the wood-work, and throwing the fragments in every direction. Only a few minutes before Messrs. Bell and Thornton were seated on the spot.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cook are spending a few days at Carolina Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lawrence and party have returned from their summer trip to Mt. Vernon and White Sulphur Springs and the Blue Ridge. They were especially charmed with the pleasures of their trip over the mountains.

Mr. Andrew Broadfoot got back last week from a trip to Asheville. He says that the beautiful mountain resort is full of visitors, and that the new "Kenilworth Inn," not yet quite completed, is one of the most elegant houses of entertainment in the South.

Col. J. B. Starr, Col. Chas. Haigh, Col. W. J. Green, Capt. John H. Robinson, and Messrs. A. D. McGill and J. W. Fuller, of this county, were among the ex-Confederate Veterans in camp at Wrightsville last week. There were doubtless many more, but we have failed to obtain their names.

Mr. J. J. Farriss, of the High Point Enterprise, passed through the city last week with his bride, on their return from a pleasant trip to the sea-coast. Mr. Farriss was once telegraph operator for the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway at this place, where he has many friends to wish him much happiness.

We received a pleasant call last week from Mr. Geo. H. Haigh, former editor and proprietor of the OBSERVER—just down from the "State of Wilkes." He describes that valley as a most magnificent farming country, with an exuberance of yield in tobacco, grasses and cereals which proclaim it another of the "garden spots" of North Carolina.

Religious Notes.

Rev. T. P. Barclay, at the Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning, preached the final sermon of his pastorate of that congregation—a forcible, earnest and thoughtful discourse, followed with marked interest and attention.

Mr. Barclay has been pastor of the Fayetteville Presbyterian Church about two years and three months, devoting his consecrated and prayerful efforts to its upbuilding and increase in vital godliness. His theology has been God's service and a warfare against sin wherever its crest is upreared—always seeking therein to magnify his Master's glory—and his work has not been unblessed in this field. He leaves here for evangelistic work in Virginia, making his home at Bedford City.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Moore will return home on Saturday next, and will occupy his pulpit in Hay Street Methodist Church next Sunday. The following week will be devoted to prayer for missions, in accordance with the instructions of the Bishop of the Conference.

IN MEMORIAM.

F. I. L. I. HALL, Aug. 3, 1891.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take from us our time-honored and respected comrade, Capt. W. T. FRIZELL, at one time an efficient officer of our Company, therefore be it

Resolved, That while we lament the death of one who for so long a time has been an esteemed member of our body, yet we are forced to bow with reverence and submission to the will of Him whose call awaits us all.

Resolved, That in his loss our Company has been deprived of an old and honored member, the community of an upright and useful citizen, and the young men of our body of one whose example for integrity of character, purity of life and devotion to duty they may do well to follow.

Resolved, That a page in our records be inscribed with his name, followed by a copy of these resolutions, that our standards be enshrouded with mourning for the usual time, that as an expression of our heartfelt sympathy a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be furnished our town papers for publication

ED. R. MCKETHAN,
JOHN H ROBINSON, JR.,
SAMUEL WIDDIFIELD,
Committee.

A Courtesy Appreciated.

In behalf of the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry and their townful of friends in this part of the country, we thank the Wilmington Star for its fairness—after publishing the State Guard Association's attack on the Company—in giving space for the reply, with the following just and friendly comment:

We publish in the Star of to-day the proceedings of a meeting held by the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry, called in consequence of the resolutions passed in reference to it at a meeting of the State Guard during the late encampment. Those who speak for the Fayetteville Company speak calmly, with dignity, and with a total absence of resentment which does them credit.

Duplin's With 'Em!

A staunch Duplin friend of the "gray" relieves the pent-up soul with the following tribute:

The F. I. L. I., bless their dear hearts!
To think that any Southern man
(Who has the honor to wear a blue coat!)
Should raise a voice against them—

Duplin joins with hand and heart,
And sends a loving message;
Stand by your color, boys;
The majority are with you!

The F. I. L. I. such manly, true and worthy men,
From the mother town of our S ate,
Loved the gray, declined the blue:—
Who could say aught against them?

Let the boys in blue sneeze and sneeze,
But they can't turn over the executive chair;
The guns are yours, the gray is yours—
Our lamented Governor willed it so;
And the voice of the people seconds it!

Elegant Fashion Books.

The new Fashion Journals, "La Mode," "La Mode de Paris," and "Album des Modes," published by A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York, are the most elegant of their kind ever brought to our notice. The styles are drawn by the best artists; and the books are produced by rival houses in Paris, each trying to excel the other in the character of its publications. Formerly they were printed only in French; but they are now published in English for the use of American readers. These journals furnish the styles one month in advance of any similar publications; and they have a practical department, in which lessons are given each month on how to make dresses, etc. The admirable fashions, the lessons in dressmaking, and the giving of the styles one month earlier than heretofore are strong points in favor of these Fashion Books, causing them to be called "The Favorites." These excellent publications can be obtained from all newsdealers.

A Romance.

She was fair—and my passion began!
She smiled—and I could not but love!
But when from afar I detected catarrh,
No beauty my passion could move!

In despair she sought doctors in vain,
Till she learned of "Humanity's boon;"
Now her breath is as sweet as the dew
Which falls upon roses in June.

To night, as we sit in our home,
And I kiss her sweet lips o'er and o'er,
We bless Dr. Sage in our bliss,
For the joy that he brought to our door.

There is no disease more trying to friendship than catarrh: The constant effort to clear the throat and nose, the foul breath, all the features of the disease, make it as much dreaded by the friend as by the victim. Humanity has cause to bless Dr. Sage for his "Catarrh Remedy." The manufacturers offer to forfeit $500 for any case they cannot cure.

Sheriff's Sale under Execution.

One large Mouse-Colored Mule.
One large Black Mule.
One two-horse Road Wagon and Harness.

OPEN LETTER No. 8.

To the Citizens of Fayetteville and Surrounding Country.

From the reliability and popularity of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee, I respectfully ask your attention to the following letters of endorsement by parties who have tested this time-tried Company:

J. H. MCADEN, Pres't. J. R. HOLLAND, Cashier.
C. N. G. BUTT, Ass't Cashier.
MERCHANTS' AND FARMERS' NATIONAL BANK.
No. 1781.
CHARLOTTE, N, C., April 24, 1890.

I regard the Northwestern Mutual as one of the best companies in existence. I think it without exception one of the soundest organizations and the best for the policy-holder. I now hold three policies in this company, and would not change them for any other. My dividends are much larger than in any other companies in which I carry life insurance, and my insurance as safe in this as any other. The affairs of the company are safely and conservatively managed; they pay promptly and are exceedingly fair and liberal with their policy-holders. J. H. MCADEN,
Pres. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank,

RICHMOND, Va., May 9th, 1890.

Messrs. John B. Cary & Son, Richmond, Va.:

GENTLEMEN:—I have three policies in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, aggregating $20,000 insurance; the first taken in 1884. I am entirely satisfied with the results, which have exceeded my expectations in regard to dividends. In comparing these with my dividends on policies in other companies, I have no hesitation in giving preference to the Northwestern. I believe it to be as safe and well-managed as any other company. Yours truly,

JNO. B. PURCELL,
Pres. Chamber Com. of Richmond.

D. Humphreys, Esq., Agent Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Norfolk, Va.:

DEAR SIR:—You ask how I like my policies in the Northwestern Life Insurance Company. In reply I have to say that I carried one policy in that Company for eight years, and was so well pleased with it that I then took another policy for $10,000 on the twenty-year endowment plan in the same company, and that I would not exchange these policies (now covering upon my life for $20,000) for the policies of any other company I know of. I consider the company the best for the policy-holders, and do not hesitate to commend it to my friends. Very respectfully,

N. BURRUSS.

Col. John B. Cary, Richmond, Va.:

DEAR SIR:—I take pleasure in stating that I have successively taken in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company four policies aggregating $30,000, canceling $10,000 I had in other companies because results or dividends in your company were so much better.

It is needless to say that I consider the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company as standing very high and offering advantages superior to others, else I should not have given it this decided preference.

Very truly yours,
E. SCHAEFER.

SOLD EVERYWHERE,

Wisdom in Sadness.

The world is sad? Ah, yes; I know, so sad—
I also know that wisdom is in sadness—
If all were glad—dost thou not know
The purest things are never born of gladness?

You press the rose with ruthless hand,
Its dying breath is sweetest, tho' death-laden;
You crush the heart, and depths are stirred—
A woman stands where stood the thoughtless maiden.

The singer's heart must break ere he can sing,
For sorrow reaches depths to joy unknown;
Who would not leave the mocking bird's glad song
To listen to the lone dove's sad, sweet moan?

Was not the grandest prayer e'er heard by mortal
Wrung from the Master's heart by bitter pain?
It was in it he purchased our salvation;
Oh, mourner! know, His anguish was our gain.

And thus it is o'er all the sad world, ever
The purest things in sorrow's cup lie hid;
Oh, do not long to call again your loved one,
Whose dead face smiles beneath the coffin lid.

Growing Turnips.

St. Louis Republic.]

There is one advantage in growing turnips—they are a cheap crop, and all that cannot be marketed or used to good advantage can be fed to the stock. When there is a good crop they make a cheap feed for stock, and when there is a light crop they can nearly always be sold profitably. Fresh land is the best for this crop, and it is best to plough thoroughly, and work into a good tilth in good season, as with nearly or quite all root crops it is an important item to work the soil deep. The seed is small, and in order to secure effectual germination it is necessary to have the soil in excellent tilth.

From the middle or last of July to the second or third week in August is the best time for sowing. The exact time can best be determined by the season and the condition of the soil. There is nothing gained in sowing the crop unless there is moisture enough to induce quick germination of the seed. These need only a very light covering, and for this reason it is best to sow after rather than before a rain, as often a hard rain will run the soil together, not only covering the seed too deeply but also baking or forming a crust over the top, through which the plants cannot force their way. Care must be taken not to sow the seed too thickly, and to get them scattered as evenly as possible over the surface. Mixing with ashes or fine road-dust will help in sowing to get the seed evenly distributed. A brush or light harrow drawn over the earth after sowing will cover the seed sufficiently.

Purple top, strap-leaved, white egg and yellow globe are all good varieties. From 3 to 4 lbs. of seed per acre are enough. In many cases they can be sown where the earlier crops have grown and matured, and, as they occupy the ground but a short time, they are usually regarded as only a "catch crop."

The Best Fertilizer for Onions.

New York Sun.]

Chicken and horse manures are excellent fertilizers for onions and other garden vegetables, but they should be mixed together at least six months before using, and one year would be still better.

Prepare your manure now for next season's use, and fork over at least once every month during the summer and autumn. Where good, fine swamp muck or leaf mold from the woods can be obtained it should be added in the proportion of two to one in bulk to the manure, and be thoroughly mixed with it as an absorbent. The object in thoroughly mixing and forking over the compost-heap is to hasten the disintegration and decomposition of all lumps and coarse material likely to have been incorporated in gathering the different fertilizers of which the heap is composed, and at the same time to expose all parts to the air and light, thereby allowing the weed seeds it contains to sprout, and then be destroyed as the heap is turned over.

When fresh barn-yard or stable manure is used the weed seeds it contains are apt to give trouble when they sprout among such plants as onions, and the weeding of the crop becomes an expensive operation. New, rich soils are best for onions; and then, to avoid weeds, use commercial fertilizers, wood-ashes, salt or very old and thoroughly-rotted stable manure. Onions may be grown on the same land for many years in succession.

A Long Tail on a Cow.

W. H. Seelye of Kalamazoo, Michigan, a dairyman of long experience, says: "I know of no physiological reason why a long tail is a good sign in a dairy cow, but I do know that all our best cows have them." Mr. J. B. Knapp, of Portland, Oregon, gave a corresponding opinion in the Dairyman not long ago. The Hollanders for hundreds of years have observed that their most promising and long-milking cows had long tails. Hence it became a settled thing with them that the tail should extend at least below the hock. The Dairyman says: "The long tail is an indication of nerve power, and that is always a thing to be desired in a cow. It is equivalent to what we call the 'staying power' in a race-horse."

A Cheap Cure for Gapes.

Farmers' Home Journal.]

Nearly every poultryman is troubled with gapes in young chicks, and various remedies are recommended for same. All that is required is a barrel with the head out, an old bag or cloth to cover over the top, and lime. Put the chicks in the barrel, take the lime and break it up fine, put it in an old sack, and hold inside of the barrel; now cover top of the barrel with the cloth, holding your arm down inside of the barrel, and shaking the lime thoroughly so as to fill the barrel with lime-dust. Leave the chicks in for a few minutes until they have inhaled plenty of the the lime, and the job is well done.

☞"And what is the trouble?" asked the young husband of the physician attending his wife. "Well, I don't think the case is really bad enough for a season at the sea-shore. I think that a cure may be effected by the judicious application of a nice summer hat."

☞Shrubs which flower early should always be pruned in the summer or early fall, as the flower buds are on last season's growth of wood; while late flowering varieties should by all means be pruned in the spring, as the buds are on this year's growth of wood.

Electropoise. (TRADE MARK)

1425 N. Y. Ave., Washington, D. C.

DURHAM, N. C., June 22nd, 1891.

Mr. John N. Webb, Washington, D. C.:

DEAR SIR:—I have known the Electropoise used in a number of different cases for various complaints. In no instance have I known it to fail to benefit or cure the person who used it. I am not in any way interested in it. My object is to benefit humanity, and I unhesitatingly say that, from my long personal acquaintance with you, as well as from the wonderful cures it has wrought under my own observation, on various persons afflicted with various ills, I am prepared to believe the testimony offered in proof of the wonderful cures produced by the persistent, intelligent use of the Electropoise, and commend it to invalids. Yours truly,

ALEX. WALKER.
